HKIUD Urban Design Conference 2018 - Inclusive Urban Design for Active Ageing

We are all aware of the global trend of rapid ageing. World Health Organization has listed different factors for adapting cities for ageing. Lots of efforts are being done by different cities, including elderly services, healthcare and universal accessibility. However, not much systematic research or work has been seen in terms of urban design for enhancing aged people's active lifestyle. Our workshop and conference aims to explore principles and examples on inclusive urban design for active ageing.

This conference explores both physical and social issues in how our cities can be more inclusive and why better urban design is essential in reinforcing the cultural ties in our communities, especially with an ageing population. This conference will provide an excellent platform for the exchange of ideas like walkability, active living environment, transport modes, social participation, healthcare, mixed-use development, etc. all under the broad scope of 'Inclusive Urban Design'.

A workshop will be held with local stakeholders and research institutes in mid March 2018. The tentatively date is 22 June 2018. We are pleased to announced that the Honourable Bernard Charnwut Chan, GBS, JP, Convenor of Non-Official Members of the Executive Council and Dr the Honourable Lam Ching-choi, BBS, JP, Non-Official Member of the Executive Council have agreed to be the keynote speakers and Prof. Winy Maas of MVRDV has accepted our invitation as speaker.

We look forward to receiving suggestions from HKIUD members.
