CPD event Conservation series

Webinar on Countryside Conservation

Date: 20 May 2021 (Thursday)

Time: 6:30 PM – 7:45 PM

Speakers:

Prof. Stephen Tang Man-bun, BBS,
Head, Countryside Conservation Office,
Environmental Protection Department

Synopsis

Countryside Conservation- Why it matters?
What and How it is happening?

In her first Policy Address delivered in 2017, the Chief Executive announced the establishment of the Countryside Conservation Office (CCO) to co-ordinate conservation projects that promote sustainable development of remote countryside. The CCO would set up a funding scheme providing subsidy to non-profit organisations (NPO) to carry out conservation projects and would coordinate minor improvement works in those areas. Lai Chi Wo (荔枝窩) and Sha Lo Tung (沙羅洞) have been selected as the priority areas for these efforts. We start to see the rich ecological, architectural and cultural resources being conserved and revitalised and the potential for promoting eco-tourism and green jobs. It is a good example of how urban-rural symbiosis can be achieved in harmony with the efforts of all relevant stakeholders (Government – Community – Villagers).
