Joint event in Conservation series # 2

Central Market, Hongkong

In less than 200 years, Central has witnessed the transformation of Hong Kong from a fishing village into an entrepot; and, more recently into today's modern metropolis and global financial centre. Today, Central is the administrative centre of Hong Kong and home to many international and Mainland financial and business corporations. While myriad fascinating new high-rise buildings have been constructed over time, numerous examples of original architecture remain preserved within the cityscape. All of this has been fused and distilled into the distinct Central we see today.

To understand more on Conserving Central, the Hong Kong Architecture Centre, the Hong Kong Institute of Urban Design and the Professional Green Building Council cordially invite you to join the joint event in Conservation series # 2. Event details as follows:
